QUARANTINE RULES TO BE ENFORCED

Health Officer Brophy Ready to Prosecute if Regulations are Not Adhered to—One Case of Violation Suspected—Two Children Without Certificates Not Allowed to Remain Here.

The preventive measures of the Norwich health authorities and the preparedness which they are showing in enforcing them continue to keep this city and town free from infantile paralysis. With the decrease in the force and extent of the epidemic threat left by the epidemic of last year, the health authorities are confidently looking for New York and the other cities where the disease has gained a foothold, it is to be hoped that the stringent exclusion regulations which have been and are to be enforced will be sufficient to keep the city free from the disease.

While there had nothing of change to report in the local situation Monday night Health Officer Dr. E. J. Brophy said that the fact that there is to be no let-up here in keeping out children that may be possible carriers of the infection. He said that anyone who is found breaking quarantine or unlawfully gaining entrance to the city will be dealt with severely. The statutes governing infringement of health officer's orders are imprisonment for a fine of $500 and six months' imprisonment as a maximum punishment and prosecution will result here, Dr. Brophy said on occasion arises and it is required.

Officer Smith on Franklin square found two children on Franklin square who had come in by car from the outlying town and did not bring with them the required health certificates. Consequently they were kept from coming after spending the night at the city hall.

Another case was reported Monday of a party coming by automobile from New York that aroused the suspicion of an attempt to break quarantine. This will be duly investigated. The automobile gives the method best adapted for slipping into town unobserved but the health authorities have not reported any Monday night attempts to run the blockade. A party that attempted to get in Sunday and was stopped at the city hall.

New York at midnight, it was stated, by automobile, in the hope of entering the city in the morning.

Dr. Brophy reported Monday night that this hot weather mothers have the full liberty to take their children out for a day, but only for one day. It was found Monday that the Sherman street family which was reported to have come in by automobile, had only been spending the day in New London and so there was no need of a quarantine.

The six year old girl at the hospital was said to be "about the same" and "resting comfortably."

No new cases of infantile paralysis were reported in New London Tuesday or in the surrounding towns. The children at the hospital were resting comfortably and the health authorities were pleased at the situation.

A little girl accompanied by her father was forced to return to New York Saturday night. The parent and daughter arrived at New London on the Gilt Edge at 3.35 to join the mother who had been visiting there. The man was warned in New York that he would not be admitted to the city, but he said he would take a chance. It was hard to convince him that he could not be admitted because of the exclusion order and he had to be taken on the New London line steamers.

Saturday night Health Officer Edwin C. Chipman discovered that there was an ocean grinder and a monkey in New London and that the animal was shaking hands with little children.

The health officer, not knowing where the monkey was, notified the police that it might prove a source of infection and asked that he be ordered out of town.
